

Buying An Airline Ticket

- Baggage Allowance: Baggage allowance refers to the maximum weight and number of bags a passenger is allowed to bring on a flight.
- Boarding Pass: A boarding pass is a document issued by an airline that allows a passenger to board a specific flight.
- Cancellation Policy: Cancellation policy refers to the rules and fees associated with cancelling or changing an airline ticket before the scheduled departure.
- Fare: The fare refers to the price paid for an airline ticket, which includes the cost of the flight and any additional fees.
- Itinerary: A detailed plan or schedule of a traveler's flight details including departure and arrival times, flight numbers, and layovers.
- Reservation: A reservation when buying an airline ticket is a confirmed booking for a specific flight on a specified date.
- Seat Selection: Seat selection refers to the process of choosing a specific seat on an airplane during the booking or check-in process.

Airport Security

- Body Scanner: A body scanner is a device used in airport security to detect hidden objects or weapons on a person's body.
- Carry-on Luggage: Small bag or suitcase that passengers can bring onto the plane with them, typically stored in the overhead compartment.
- Metal Detector: A metal detector is a device used in airport security to detect metal objects on a person passing through.
- Pat-down: A pat-down is a security procedure where a person's body is physically checked by a security officer for concealed items.
- Screening: Screening at airport security refers to the process of examining passengers and their belongings for prohibited items or threats.
- TSA: TSA stands for Transportation Security Administration, a government agency responsible for ensuring the security of passengers and baggage at airports.
- X-ray Machine: An x-ray machine at the airport is a device that uses electromagnetic radiation to scan luggage for prohibited items.

Finding Departure Gate

- Boarding Pass: A boarding pass is a document issued by an airline that allows a passenger to board a flight at the airport.
- Connecting Flight: A connecting flight is a flight that requires passengers to change planes at a connecting airport to reach their final destination.
- Departure Board: A departure board is a display at an airport that shows the scheduled departure times and gates for flights.
- Gate Agent: A gate agent is an airline employee responsible for assisting passengers with boarding and ensuring smooth departure at the gate.
- Gate Number: Gate number: The specific location at an airport where passengers board their flight, indicated on boarding passes and airport screens.
- Security Checkpoint: A security checkpoint is a designated area in an airport where passengers' belongings are screened for prohibited items before boarding.
- Terminal: A terminal at the airport is a designated area where passengers board their flights, find departure gates, and check-in.

Flying on an Airplane

- Cabin Crew: Cabin crew refers to the trained staff members responsible for ensuring the safety and comfort of passengers during flights.
- Turbulence: Turbulence refers to sudden, unpredictable movements of the aircraft caused by changes in the atmosphere, resulting in a bumpy ride.
- Tray Table: A small, foldable table attached to the back of the seat in front of you on an airplane for dining or working.
- Overhead Compartment: Overhead compartment is a storage space above passenger seats on an airplane used for storing carry-on luggage and personal items.
- Flight Attendant: A flight attendant is a member of the cabin crew responsible for ensuring the safety and comfort of passengers during flights.
- Seat Belt: A seat belt on an airplane is a safety device that passengers must fasten during takeoff, landing, and turbulence.
- In-flight Entertainment: In-flight entertainment refers to the entertainment options available to passengers during a flight, such as movies, TV shows, and music.